ROLEX

When it comes to naming watch brands that retain their value well, Rolex tops the list. Backed by a rich history, Rolex epitomises the ultimate luxury, precision and status. With their ingenious creations and achievements over the years, the brand has set a standard in the luxury watch world, becoming the world's most prestigious and coveted watchmakers.

CARTIER

Cartier is associated with prestige and royalty. Cartier watches represent the brand's technical and innovative mastery that offers them a unique position within the luxury watch industry. The brand has always stayed at the forefront of Haute horology, thereby making them worthy of investment. Watches by Cartier hold their value well with the time that makes them highly desirable in the pre-owned market.

JAEGER-LECOULTRE

Jaeger-LeCoultre's legacy in the art of manufacturing automatic movements dates back to 1833. The brand has even commissioned mechanical movements for other watch brands. From sports models to casual dress or classic watches, each example by Jaeger-LeCoultre represents the brand's dedication to attaining utmost precision and durability.

PATEK PHILIPPE

With nearly 177 years of watchmaking legacy, this brand creates mechanical masterpieces using top-notch materials and movements that enable them to retain a fantastic resale value. A Patek Philippe watch symbolises power, class and exclusivity. A Patek model can fetch you a premium in the resale market, especially if it is in excellent working condition and retains all original paperwork.

AUDEMARS PIGUET

This highly prestigious watch brand is popular for the superior quality and uniqueness of its watches. The rich materials, techniques, design and complex functionalities make the brand stand out from the rest. Audemars Piguet takes a year to create, design and produce a time-piece. Considering these factors, it's no surprise that AP watches retain excellent resale value.

BELL & ROSS

Bell & Ross has been famous among watch lovers for many years and still enjoys global desirability due to their constant innovation and evolution. As guaranteed by the brand, their timepieces are made by professionals for professionals. Each watch model is made using premium quality materials, durable movements and incorporating meticulous process.
